Staff Notes

The pool season is now in full swing. It's wonderful to see so many neighborhood residents enjoying the pool. In an effort to make sure we have an adequate number of lifeguards to safely guard the pool and prevent overcrowding, we ask that residents complete a Pool Party Form when bringing more than 5 guests to the pool. Pool party forms are available at the clubhouse office. Another reminder, please do not bring snacks and/or beverages to sell at the pool deck.

We encourage the residents to let us know what they would like their neighborhood clubhouse to provide. We love hearing your feedback on the fun things we plan like food trucks, holiday events, etc. If you have a great idea such as our upcoming movie night, give us a call or send us an email!

Have a fun and safe Independence day!

Meeting Minutes
June 27, 2022

The following items were covered:

- 1 Accent will be clearing out the brush outside of the pool and tennis court area on the side nearest the homes. This was requested by a member at a meeting, The cost is about $400.
2. The clubhouse computer system needs an update. If any of you have a contact who works with a computer company that can give some advice it would be appreciated. We are looking to update the computer and the software.
3. Schilli Plastering has finished the kiddie pool and it is up and running!
4. We had a pump go out on the main pool. The only electric company that returned a call was Reinhold. They ultimately replaced a pump motor which may have some warranty. The cost could be as much as $3000 depending on any warranty. No one made the Swim Team aware of the problem and they did use the pool for practice. We need to make sure the Swim Team is notified when a problem exists.
5. It was reported that the fan/light fixture in the kitchen was not working. Apparently, it was a tripped GFI! No charge for that one!
6. Apparently, there was a disturbance at the pool regarding a pool party. The person who set up the party thought they had rented the adult pool for their exclusive use. We have added language to the website explaining the use of the pool for parties. In addition, a notice has been posted in the office to ensure future parties are aware of the pool usage policy to avoid misunderstandings!
7. The "Adults Only" signs are missing from the adult pool. We have placed temporary signs up and will order permanent ones for the pool area.
8. It was noted that several chairs have broken straps and need to be replaced. The manager will look for replacements and additional furniture.
9. With the addition of the new ramp, moving the handicapped parking space from its current location was discussed.

Comprehension passage and tasks for the 4th of July.

July 4th Happy Birthday AMERICA

Read the text and complete the tasks below:

The 4th of July is an important day for Americans. It is the day their country was born. On July 4th 1776, Congress officially adopted the Declaration of Independence and announced to the world that they were a free nation, independent from Great Britain. Although Americans have celebrated July 4th since 1777, it didn't really become a federal legal holiday until 1941. So, what do Americans do on this day?

July 4th celebrations often take place outdoors. People decorate their homes with streamers, fake rockets, balloons and flags. Everything is done up in red, white, and blue, the colours of the 'The Star-Spangled Banner', the name of the US national anthem and one of the nicknames of the American flag. The flag has 50 stars for the fifty states and 13 stripes for the first 13 colonies. In the morning, lots of people dress up and go out in the street to watch the parades. The biggest parade is in Washington D.C., the capital of the USA. Afterwards families get together by hosting or attending a picnic or barbecue. In many cities people have block parties. Then, they watch or play a baseball game. At night, they watch firework displays, usually accompanied by patriotic songs. Firework shows are held in many states with the Macy's Firework Spectacular in New York, typically being the most impressive. It's a fun day for everyone.

HAPPY 4TH OF JULY !

Dumblepumpple The Friendly Troll Meets A Dragon

One night a young and foolish troll named Dumblepumpple wandered deep into the dense forest, far from home. He came upon a clearing as it started to rain. Oh no! His mother had always told him to stay out of the rain in case he got too clean. He spotted a cave nearby and ran inside, bumping straight into a sleeping dragon!

The dragon stirred and opening one eye, looked the small troll up and down. Fortunately for Dumblepumpple, the dragon had eaten his dinner before going to bed, so he wasn't hungry. Also, wet trolls smell like stinky skunks, which no one likes to eat, not even dragons.

Dumblepumpple, never having experienced fear, did not realize the great danger he was in, and sat down to warm his feet on the smoke coming from the dragon's nostrils.

The foul odour of his feet was too much for the dragon who roused himself enough to push the troll out of the cave with his snout. Laughing now, thinking it was a game, Dumblepumpple skipped back inside and seated himself expectantly in front of the dragon. Surprised, the dragon pushed him out again, and once more the young troll scooted inside and sat in front of him, giggling.

Luckily, as well as having a full tummy, the dragon had been dreaming of piles of gold and was in a humming mood, so he picked up the troll in his teeth and tossed him in the air then caught him high on his tail. Dumblepumpple slid down the tail and landed hard in the back of the cave, laughing loudly. As he landed, he kicked something out from a crack in the wall—a golden and jeweled bracelet! Not understanding what it was, he offered it to the dragon. Normally the dragon would have swallowed anyone whole who dared touch his treasure, but he had been looking for that bracelet for days and was so happy to have it returned he stood up and roared in delight. This made Dumblepumpple laugh even louder.

When the roar died down, Dumblepumpple heard a familiar sound—it was his father calling to him. He raced outside, leaving the dragon nosing his treasure. He followed his father's shouts till he found him a long way from the cave. His father scolded him for walking so far away from home. When he told his parents about the dragon at their midnight munch, he got another scolding for making up stories and wasn't allowed his vegetables until he'd eaten all his dessert. Yuk!

As he grew, he sometimes searched for the dragon, but could never find him. He always remembered the fun he'd had that night, even though no one ever believed his story.

Back in those days, it was a well-known fact that every autumn the humans prepared to fight the trolls and trolls got ready for war. Every year, many lives were lost on both sides, neither side won. Winter came, and it was too cold to fight, especially at night. The humans wanted to go to bed, and the trolls wanted to go sledding, so war would end.

One year, when the fighting began, the trolls saw the humans had captured a wild and hungry looking dragon. The trolls were terrified. The humans were quick to set it onto the trolls, shouting, "To your dinner, Dragon Fire!"

Dumblepumpple, now almost fully grown, saw his family and friends run away. He knew they couldn't escape the dragon, no matter how fast they ran. So, he turned and studied the dragon as it got closer. Then suddenly, he did the most remarkable thing.

He lay down on his back and pointed his toes in the air at the dragon swooping down towards him. The dragon seemed to pause in mid-air as it got a familiar whiff of those feet. It landed next to Dumblepumpple and nuzzled him with his snout. Dumblepumpple giggled like a child troll and as everyone looked on, he and the dragon started playing Push the Troll. Humans and trolls were both amazed and stood at a distance, watching and talking to each other. That was the start of the peace talks. Nowadays, there is an annual holiday, called Dragon Day, to mark the peace between trolls and humans. Every year on Dragon Day, Dumblepumpple visits his friend the dragon and has a game of Push the Troll.
